

Newsletter- Friday 6th March

What a week it's been. With our Eisteddfod grand finale on Friday! We've been absolutely blown away by the standard of entries this year — from imaginative artwork to some incredible baking. The talent and enthusiasm on display have been nothing short of inspiring.

A huge thank you for your continued support, and an even bigger well done to our wonderful children. You've worked hard, you've shone brightly, and we are incredibly proud of every single one of you.

Below is a round-up of this week's highlights along with important upcoming dates. We put a great deal of care and effort into keeping you informed and making the best experiences for your children, so please take a moment to read through.

Have a good weekend!

Warm wishes

Nicola Locker and the St Chad's Team

An Amazing Eisteddfod

What an incredible Eisteddfod! A huge well done to all our children for their fantastic performances — the effort, creativity and overall standard were truly amazing. We're especially proud of our Bards for their brilliant achievements.

More Eisteddfod photos and video coming soon!

We had a lovely visit to The Maelor School to watch their production of Shrek as part of our transition project. It was wonderful to spot some former St Chadians, both performing on stage and working behind the scenes. A great afternoon all round.

Dosbarth 3 had a special visit from Ged at BACS, who showed the children how to build a Mallard duck nest. The class also worked together to create bird boxes, learning about habitats and how we can support local wildlife. It was wonderful to see the children so engaged, working as a team and showing real care for the natural world around them. A fantastic start to our spring outdoor learning.

It's been a fantastic first week of Cross-Country, and the children have made a brilliant start. Our focus has been on building confidence, developing stamina, and helping everyone feel positive about challenging themselves. The enthusiasm and determination shown already have been wonderful to see, and we're excited to watch their progress grow over the coming weeks.
